Further hearing in the election contest for Sheriff of Will County, wherein Alvah M. Weston et al, are contesting the right of Albert E. Markgraf to hold the office, continued throughout last week with Jay Fordyce Wood, Chicago Handwriting Expert, for Weston, testifying.

Mr. Wood took each ballot of the First, Fourteenth and Seventeenth Joliet Precincts and testified as to what was wrong with each objected ballot regardless of whether it was a Weston or Markgraf vote. The expert employed by Markgraf is in Court and takes notes on the testimony offered by Mr. Wood and will no doubt, offer rebuttal testimony after the attorney's for Weston rest their case.

In the Seventeenth precinct there are many ballots that have been marked with a small pencil in the Republican Circle and there also appears on the ballot a cross in the Markgraf square which has been made with a pencil of very large and black lead. Possibly a pencil commonly called a Carpenters pencil.

While Mr. Wood was testifying to these ballots, Attorney Edward R. Nadelhoffer produced a pencil which was offered as evidence as exhibit No. 17. This pencil was an advertisement for "SOLVOY COKE" and also had A. C. JOHNSON & CO. printed on it. The lead was upward of one-eighth of an inch in diameter when measured by Mr. Wood. The lead was of a heavy black and very soft character. Mr. Wood said a pencil of a like character could have made the crosses that appear before Markgraf's square.

The initials on all but a few of the ballots objected to in the Seventeenth precinct bore the initials "B" "J" "F" and were made with a heavy pencil such as the cross appearing in the Markgraf square and Mr. Wood testified that the initials were made with a like pencil. He said, "it could be possible that both initials were made with a pencil of the same character."

The voting place in the seventeenth precinct was at the A. C. Johnson & Co. office on Fourth Ave., and a check of the Judges of Election filed with the County Clerk shows that the initials in question are those of Bernard J. Fey.

Mr. Wood has looked over the ballots of the First precinct of Frankfort but had not testified as to the findings in open court when Court was adjourned until Wednesday morning. Mr. Wood was called to New Orleans to testify on a case that was already started before he was employed in this case and was to be back at this time and will then take up the ballots of the Frankfort precinct.

THE NEWS-BULLETIN of last weeks issue stated that it would be well for voters of Will County if they would be allowed to view the photographed ballots, and after much expense the News-Bulletin has made it possible to view some of the objected ballots in question and prints some cuts in this issue.

As this paper goes to press we are informed that Mr. Wood has been unable to return in time to hold Court today and the case has been continued until Thursday

Giant Stolen Car Ring Claims Many Unsuspecting Ones

Several men are under arrest at the detective bureau suspected of having stolen more than 100 cars in Chicago during the last year and disposed of them to residents of Orland and Peotone, Ill., according to Lieut. John J. Farrell, head of the automobile detail.

They are Arthur Flood and Walter Neebe, 4239 Broadway; Thomas Ackerman and Paul Meier, a garage owner of Peotone. Flood and Neebe, it is charged, stole the cars in Chicago.

Ackerman, who is also known as Thomas Francis, is said to be a former convict. According to Lieut. Farrell, many of the prominent business men of Orland and Peotone are now riding in cars stolen by the ring.

Saturday detectives from Chicago called in Orland and also in Tinley Park looking up some of the stolen cars.

The arrest of ten of the Auto stealing crew who have spread some of their operations to Orland and Peotone, exposes one of the most clever crews in disposing of stolen cars.

New numbers were placed on the cars and only an expert could notice that any change had been made. One of the gang was connected with the Finance Corporation and cars

WOMEN CAN NOW DO MORE

Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound
Keeps Them Well

Fifty years ago there were few occupations for women. Some taught school, some did housework, some found work to do at home and a few took up nursing.

Today there are very few occupations not open to women. Today they work in factories with hundreds of other women and girls. There are also women architects, lawyers, dentists, executives, and legislators. But all too often a woman wins her economic independence at the cost of her health.

Mrs. Elizabeth Chamberlain who works in the Unionall factory making overalls writes that she got "wonderful results" from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mrs. Chamberlain lives at 500 Monmouth St., Trenton, N. J. She recommends the Vegetable Compound to her friends in the factory and will gladly answer any letters she gets from women asking about it.

If Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped other women, why shouldn't it help you?

Bird Has Long Life

How long can a bird live? A new official record for long life among the feathered tribe has been set by a twelve-year-old pintail duck captured near Brawley, Calif., according to Popular Science Monthly. A dated band attached to the bird's leg more than twelve years ago at Bear River, Utah, by a member of the United States biological survey, proves the record authentic.

"It may be so," replied the governor. "But I would suggest to you, my friends, that certain knowledge hath come to me which compels me to wonder whether you would persist in this attitude were you acquainted with it. Briefly, I have lately obtained definite information that the French are beginning the erection of a stone fort at Jagara. The territory this side of the falls of Jagara is secured to us by the Peace of Utrecht. 'Tis not only that the French have no right to construct a fort there. They have no right to maintain a trading post there."

"Yet my agent talked with the officers in charge, Monsieur de Joincaire and Monsieur de Lery, and they boasted of their intent to erect such a fort as would be a curb on our Indian allies, the Iroquois, and divert to their posts farther up the Cadaraqui lake the fur trade which now comes to us at Irondequoit and Oswego, Schenectady and New Albany."

"At the time I received word of the building of the fort at Jagara, I received also this report from an agent in Montreal, announcing the doubling of the price paid for beaver at the French posts, so that now they are on a par with us."

"We can afford to pay more than we do. London will still take it from us at a profit," rejoined the merchant who had first spoken.

"Trade is trade," cried another. "It goes where the money is."

"Aye, we have no fear," clamored others.

"Let us suppose," resumed the governor, "that the French permit you to draw supplies of furs through them. I can conceive they might do so if it netted them the prices they desire. Does that mean that you will always be safe in expecting to have your wants so filled?"

"To be sure," answered three or four men at once.

"I differ with you," replied Master Burnet. "The fur trade is not only a means to earn profits. 'Tis a most important stake in securing military success. The nation which controls the fur trade, my masters, will have the interest of the larger numbers of savages. The nation which owns the support of the most Indian tribes will be the nation superior in extending its territories in time of peace and superior in battle in time of war."

"It will become a plain merchant to take issue with your excellency," remarked a hard-featured merchant, "but it seems to me you attach overmuch importance to savage tribes and war. There is enough land in North America for French and English and Indians, too. Trade is everything."

"So long as 'tis rightly conducted," amended Master Burnet. "Bear in mind, my masters, that the whole history of our possessions on this continent disproved the statement that there is land enough for ourselves and the French. The French are the first to dispute this view."

"They plan openly to drive us into the sea. The New France they see in the future will embrace all the settlements of the Atlantic coast together with the inland wilderness."

"If you bait them sufficiently, doubtless they will seek to fight us," asserted a merchant.

"But they know not our English breed if they think to do so," cried a neighbor.

"Or the Dutchman, either," said a third.

"Good! That is the spirit I want to arouse," acknowledged the governor, quick to seize what he thought an advantage. "Gentlemen, what I desire from you especially today is your support in a plan I have been considering for moderating the exit of goods to Canada. The volume reached in recent weeks passes all reason. If permitted to continue 'till exhaust our supplies. It plays directly into the hands of—"

But he was not suffered to continue. "Free trading!" shouted a group. "Stick by the law, governor!" warned one.

"The law is the law!" cried a third. The prosperous-looking merchant stood up and made himself heard by pounding his stick on the floor.

"Do I understand your excellency to mean that you would alter the instructions received from the lords of trade?" he asked.

"My plan is rather to amend the carrying out of the law by certain restrictions until I can forward representations on the situation to their lordships," replied Master Burnet steadily.

"But as one of my brethren has just remarked, the law is the law."

"The trouble here, sirs, is that there is no law," declared the governor. "We have the suspension of the law, and in the interim there is no provision for a substitute statute."

"Tush, we want no such law," proclaimed the hard-featured merchant. "Let us not quibble. His excellency might as well know the truth. Since Master Murray won his case we have been able to sell and buy as we chose. And our coffers have swollen thereby."

"The law was an ill-judged law. It restricted trade, reduced profits. Let the French secure furs if they wish. They may do the dirty work. We will sit back and reap the profits. Better have free trade under France than limited trade under England or any other country."

"You talk treason, sir," said the governor coldly. "Moreover, you talk foolishly. There is no freedom of trade in Canada—"

"Well, we have it here; and by —, we'll keep it as long as we can," replied the merchant.

"That is not like to be very long, my masters," announced a new voice.

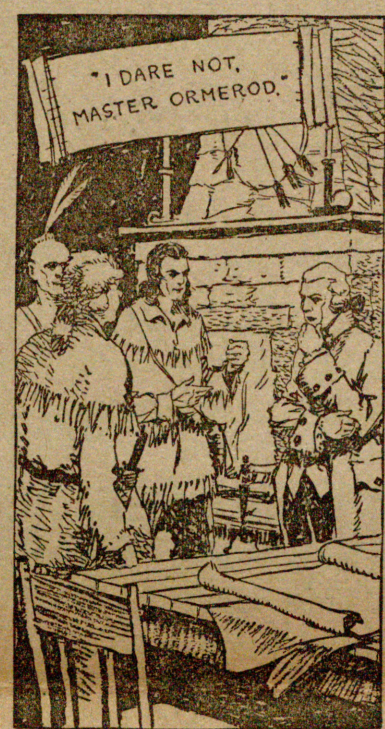

All eyes were turned to the door. There stood Andrew Murray, laced and cocked hat tucked under his arm. He bowed low to the governor.

"I must beseech your excellency's pardon for my unheralded entrance," he said. "I am but just arrived in town, and I hastened here to present my case to you."

He swept his eyes over the room as he spoke and fastened them upon my face.

"You are welcome, Master Murray," returned the governor. "Had I known where to reach you I should have invited your attendance."

"I am honored, sir. I venture to intrude upon you because of information I possess which I am sure will be of interest to you and all others who have the prosperity of the province at heart."

"I am interested," said the governor impartially. "Pray state your case, Master Murray."

"I shall do so all the more readily, your excellency, because I am persuaded you can have no knowledge of the crimes recently committed by persons who represent themselves to be your agents."

"I see in this room three men whom I charge with the wanton destruction of a large quantity of furs and the murder of two of my servants and a number of friendly Indians."

And that there might be no mistaking the objects of his accusation Murray pointed his forefinger at my comrades and me. Murmurs arose and hostile glances were bent upon us.

"Be explicit, if you please," said the governor.

"I will, sir," replied Murray boldly. "The young man known as Harry Ormerod, with Peter Corlaer and a Seneca chief called Ta-wan-ne-ars, raided a fleet of canoes on the shore of the Cadaraqui lake near Oswego and burned hundreds of packs of valuable furs which the far-western savages were bringing in for trade."

"I have heard something of this matter," admitted Master Burnet. "But I understood the savages were in charge of Monsieur de Joincaire, the French commandant at Jagara, and bound for Montreal."

"Monsieur de Joincaire was accompanying them, 'tis true," admitted Murray. "But the savages were bound for my own trading stations. The loss, which will run into thousands of pounds, will fall upon our New York merchants."

The murmurs grew into an outburst of indignation which the governor quelled with difficulty.

"I shall look into Master Murray's charges," he said. "So much, at least, he is entitled to. But first I wish to

Brown Proved Quite Unable to See Joke

Two bachelors, Smith and Brown, were seated in the flat of the latter.

Smith—Would you like to know the name of your future wife?

Brown—I certainly would.

"Well, I'll guarantee to tell you her name by arithmetic."

"That's impossible."

"Well, you take a piece of paper and work out this sum: Write down the year in which you were born, subtract the last two figures from the first two. Now multiply what remains by the date of the month in which you were born. Divide your answer by two, and tell me the result."

Brown, after a lengthy struggle and much thought, at last works out the problem and hands his friend the result.

acquaint him with what I have laid before this gathering, all the more so because he is more vitally interested perhaps than any other.

"Master Murray, I am concerned over the extent to which the fur trade is passing into French hands, and I am bound to say my information indicates that the French have your assistance in the matter. The quantities of trade-goods going up-river have enormously increased this summer. They are hundreds of tons in excess of what formerly passed through Albany."

"Doubtless our trading posts have profited thereby," suggested Murray blandly.

"On the contrary," returned Master Burnet with decision. "Our trading posts have fared worse, if anything. Aside from the Iroquois, the savages are patronizing more and more the French traders. Briefly Master Murray, I am canvassing the sentiment of our merchants on the advisability of suspending for the time being, to some degree at any rate, the proclamation I issued in response to the action of the lords of trade in withholding the assent of his majesty's government to our law prohibiting the trade in Indian goods with Canada."

Murray took snuff deliberately.

"I am not surprised," he commented. "I am free to say, your excellency, that I have noted hitherto a laxness on the part of the provincial authorities in administering the free-trade requirements of their lordships."

"You charge that?" inquired the governor coldly.

"I do, sir. And I give fair warning that, with a view to the best interests of the province and in response to the wishes of the majority of the merchants, I purpose to carry my complaint before the privy council at the earliest opportunity."

Governor Burnet rose from his chair. The cordiality was gone from his manner.

"This meeting is dissolved," he pronounced. "No, not a word, gentlemen—this is several undertook to object—I still hold his majesty's commission as governor, and I purpose to secure assent to my authority by one means or another. I have striven to reason with you. I shall now proceed as seems best to me. Master Murray, file your charges in writing and be prepared to bear testimony in their defense. You may go."

The door closed on the last of the turbulent group.

"But, your excellency," I protested, "why do you permit Murray to make such charges without bringing up against him the information we gathered at La Vierge du Bois? Sure, 'tis some measure of offense to apply torture to a fellow-countryman; and for the rest, there is the testimony of Ta-wan-ne-ars to corroborate me."

Governor Burnet shook his head sadly.

"You forget that unfortunately your own past is somewhat clouded in the eyes of the law. Did I charge him with anything on your evidence, he would assail you for a known Jacobite and outlaw, and whatever counter-charges we might make he would dismiss as mere efforts to offset your guilt."

"Why, 'tis incredible, your excellency," I cried with heat. "Here we have, beside myself, Peter Corlaer, who is surely known for trustworthy, if I am not. And Ta-wan-ne-ars is a chief as well as a man of education, even according to white men's standards. Must we suffer this self-confessed traitor to escape scot-free?"

The governor shook his head again. "I dare not, Master Ormerod. Unfortunately, as I have said, and through no fault of your own, you are discredited in advance as a witness. Peter is known for a sturdy hater of the French and devoted to me and to those who think as I do, notably your friend Master Juggins in London."

"Ta-wan-ne-ars is an Indian. He will acquit me of intent to offend if I say openly that my enemies will refuse to accept his word against that of a great merchant like Murray."

He hesitated a moment, deep in thought.

"There is no other way," he decided suddenly. "Draw up your charges. I have much to ask of you, and 'tis no more than fair that I should present for you all the facts in the case."

Breeds Butterflies

Butterfly farming is a career new to most people. But at least one man has made a success of it. He labels himself a lepidopterist and he has a farm at Bexley, Kent, England, devoted to nothing else but breeding of butterflies and moths—millions of them.

They are reared on trees and bushes covered with muslin bags, and are exported to museums, schools, and colleges in all parts of the world.

PETER HEALS THE LAME MAN

LESSON TEXT—Acts 3:1-4:31.

GOLDEN TEXT—Neither is there salvation in any other for there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved.—Acts 4:12.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Peter Heals a Lame Man.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Gifts That Money Cannot Buy.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Giving Our Best for Others.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Gifts That Are Better Than Money.

1. Peter Healing the Lame Man (Acts 3:1-10).

1. The place (vv. 1, 2). Peter and John were on their way to the house of worship. This man had been placed at the entrance of the place of worship where he might receive the sympathetic attention of worshippers.

2. The man (v. 2). This beggar was infirm from his birth. He was now more than forty years old (4:22) and had brought his ailment with him into the world. When he saw Peter and John he asked alms.

3. The method (vv. 3-8).

(1) The man's attention gained (v. 4).

Peter and John commanded him to look on them.

(2) Peter commanded him in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth to rise and walk (v. 6).

(3) Peter took him by the right hand (v. 7).

This was meant to give impetus to his faith—not strength to his ankles.

4. The man's response (v. 8).

Strength came to his feet and ankles at once. He stood, he walked, he leaped and shouted praises to God.

5. The effect (vv. 9-11).

The people were so filled with wonder and amazement that they ran together to behold this wonderful thing. Note:

(1) This helpless beggar had to be carried to the temple gate. Men and women out of Christ are so helpless that they need to be brought where the light of God can be applied to them.

(2) Peter taking the man by the hand shows the manner of helping the lost.

II. Peter Witnessing Before the Multitude (2:12-20).

Though this miracle directed the attention of the people to Peter and John, Peter immediately turned their attention from himself to Christ. He told them that it was faith in Jesus Christ whom God had glorified and whom they had deliberately betrayed and crucified that had healed this man.

III. Peter in Prison for Christ's Sake (4:1-4).

It was his fidelity to Christ that brought him this persecution. Observe:

1. The leaders—priests and Sadducees—in this persecution (vv. 1, 2).

The priests were intolerant because these new teachers were encroaching upon their functions.

2. The result (vv. 3, 4).

Though they were held in bondage by chains, Christ continued to work. The number of believers had greatly increased.

IV. Peter Witnessing Before the Sanhedrin (4:5-21).

1. The inquiry (vv. 5-7).

This inquiry admitted the reality of the miracle. They wanted to know what it signified.

2. Peter's answer (vv. 8-12).

Being filled with the Holy Spirit, Peter calmly and graciously answered. He showed them that they were not on trial as evildoers but for doing good to the helpless and needy man. Since they could not deny the miracle he boldly declared that it had been done in the name of Jesus Christ whom they had crucified and God had raised from the dead.

3. The impression upon the Sanhedrin (vv. 13-22).

(1) They marveled (vv. 1-13).

They saw that Peter's behavior and words were as unusual as the miracle.

(2) They took knowledge that Peter and John had been with Jesus (v. 13).

(3) They forbade them to speak in Christ's name (v. 18).

(4) Peter and John's reply (vv. 19, 20).

They expressed their determination to obey God rather than men.

(5) Their release (v. 21).

Seeing the people were on their side, there was no way to punish them.

V. The Church at Prayer (vv. 23-31).

As soon as Peter and John were set free, they hastened away to their fellow disciples and told them their experience. They praised God for deliverance and prayed for boldness to speak the Word of God.

Men as Clock's Works

When a broken pin caused the faithful clock in St. Paul's cathedral, London, to stop recently, men acted as the works. Recognizing the fact that thousands depended on the clock for time, officials of the church placed behind the face of the time-keeper men, who turned the hands every minute during the daytime until repairs were completed.

Worth Community Activity News

WORTH CONTRIBUTES TO FLOOD SUFFERERS

Through the efforts of Mrs. H. Stewart the local representative of the American Red Cross $102.00 was collected for the flood sufferers. This is to go in to help make up Cook county's quota for the flood fund. Mrs. Stewart has been appointed for another year by the Red Cross because of her fine work in cooperating with them in Worth Community.

WORTH TO HAVE INFANT WELFARE STATION

Worth is to have an infant welfare station under the supervision of the County Board of Health. Miss O'Connor, the local health nurse will have charge of the station. She will be assisted by a doctor from Blue Island. Mrs. Robert Wilson is the local representative in charge of the work.

The object of the station is to provide free medical attention to the infants and children under six years old. The children will be weighed, examined thoroughly and the parents will be given advice as to how to correct any physical defects. This will give the entire community an opportunity to gain expert advice without charge. The parents of Chicago Ridge, Palos Park and Orland will be welcome.

The station will be located in the Worth Community Church and will be open for the first time May 24. This will be quite a boon to our community as well. Progressive cities and villages all over the country are establishing these Welfare Stations. It is a step forward in the development of more perfect childhood. It is a known fact that communities who have such stations have made a decided gain in the health and development of its children.

GOODFELLOWSHIP CLUB BOOSTING THE COMMUNITY

The Goodfellowship Club has become a decided factor in the Worth Community Life. All of the leading men of the community have now become members. The club has begun the erection of a model home which will be the first of its kind in this section. This is under the supervision of Mr. A. Crandall who is chairman of the Model Home Committee. The club has also initiated a clean up week with the idea of making the community attractive. Mr. Harold Ferrin, president of the club is doing a great piece of work in the community development.

PLANNING COMMISSION WELL UNDER WAY

The planning commission composed of Mr. A. Crandall, Mr. H. Stewart, Mr. Preller, Rev. Paul T. Sanders and Mr. Carl Bishop are now very active on the future community plan. It is the work of this commission to plan the future development of Worth and work out a zoning ordinance and will govern the community development. They have passed upon the new plat of Dumas & Company. They have also suggested a new site for the village hall, which according to the opinion of most of the property owners of the community far surpasses the old site. A majority of the people feel that it is very unwise to erect a hall at this time because the future development of the village cannot be determined at this time. They contend it will just be a waste of money but as the bond issue has been made it will have to go ahead. The commission realizing this have done their best to correct this mistake, by finding a more appropriate site.

SUPPER SUCCESSFUL

A supper was given by the Women's Federation to the Goodfellowship Club recently to celebrate the gift of new tables given by the Goodfellowship Club. It was very successful, there being a good crowd out. Everyone had a good time and there was a profit of $50 for the evening.

CHURCH NIGHT

Wednesday, May 25 has been set aside as Church Night. At this time all the members, their families and friends will gather for a common dinner at 6:30 p. m. There will be two speakers from Chicago out for the evening. The children will be entertained and the grown ups will have an opportunity to enjoy themselves.

WORTH LOCALS

Mrs. D. Perry has returned home after a six months visit to Champaign and Chicago.

Mr. L. Macauley was very unfortunate in the loss of a jack from his truck, strayed or stolen.

Mrs. Chris Rust, who has been quite sick is now able to be up and outside some.

Mr. L. Beidenkopf who fell and injured himself is now able to sit up and walk some around the house.

Mr. M. Peterson the newly elected Justice of the Peace is making a very fine record for himself in his new office.

Miss Ruth Mitchell who is taking voice lessons in Chicago has received a very fine compliment and assurance from one of the leading voice teachers of the city that she has great possibilities and opportunities in that line. Miss Hazel Stromberg is also gaining considerable recognition. She has now been asked to make public appearances in communities outside of Worth.

PROPOSED WATER WORKS FOR WORTH

The Kelker, Deleuw and Company engineers have submitted a plan to the village board for a proposed water works of the village of Worth. In the plan as they outlined it they have estimated a population of 3,000 people here by 1940. This is a conservative estimate based on the normal growth of similar towns.

Other sources have estimated a population of 3,000 by 1932. This company submitting the plans suggest as a source of water supply a deep well of 200 to 450 feet deep. They suggest gravity pressure by means of a large 50,000 gallon tank elevated at a height of one hundred feet.

The estimated cost of the plant would be about $18,500.00. This would cover all expenses with the exception of the mains. They suggest paying for this by one of the four following methods: 1. General Bond Issue; 2. Water Certificates; 3. Private Corporation; 4. Special Assessment [can be used for the construction of the distribution system only.] The first three suggestions would not work as favorable as the fourth suggestion according to their reasoning. The special assessment can be spread over a term of years and thus not burden any one to any great extent.

There is great need of a water supply system in Worth. The development of the village depends a great deal on this. It will add convenience for the home and it will be much more reasonable than a private system. It is a real fire protection and will help to reduce fire insurance rates. It will also be a great boost to the town.

This plan is to be submitted at the next meeting of the village board.

WORTH PROPERTY VALUES ADVANCING

There has been a great boom in the value of real estate since Arthur Dumas and Company have opened up their Harlem Avenue subdivision. It is reported that certain corner lots on Harlem Avenue that were sold for $102 per front foot not over two months ago have had offers of resale at $20,000 per lot. It is interesting to note that this property was sold for less than $800 per acre less than two years ago. Old settlers who were saying two years ago "Worth is dead and always will be" are beginning to open their eyes now. The old Worth is no more. Each day sees a greater change.

CHURCH NIGHT MAY 25th

There will be a general get-together of the members of Worth Community church Wednesday, May 25. It will be a big night in Worth. The families will gather together for dinner at 6:30 p. m., at which time Dr. Bradshaw of Chicago will address the gathering and in fact will be the leading speaker. He will speak on the problem of the child. Following this there will be a meeting in the chapel upstairs where a noted speaker will give the address of the evening.

Miss Gladys Crandall celebrated her 18th birthday Tuesday May 17. She was given a surprise in the evening by her parents who presented her with a baby grand piano. All the family and relatives were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Woods are spending the week in Omaha, Nebraska where Mr. Woods was called on business.

Hermits' Cells Remain

The mountains near the city of Jericho, says one who explored many of them, "are absolutely honeycombed by the cells of ancient anchorites and hermits from top to bottom." Some of these contain frescoes and inscriptions of much interest, dating back to the earliest years of the Christian era.

Andrew Jackson's Politics

Andrew Jackson is popularly supposed to have started the modern Democratic party. It was to a large extent the successor of the Jeffersonians. But Old Hickory himself did not apply the name "Democratic" to his followers. During his Presidency and after his retirement to the Hermitage, in all his correspondence he called himself a Republican and spoke of his party as the Republican party.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Co-operation With Health Dept.

By Herbert L. Wright,
Ph. G., M. D., Dr. P. H. Director

No department of health can possibly accomplish anything like what it should accomplish or render anything near 100 per cent efficient service unless the people themselves learn to co-operate and play their part in this game of disease prevention.

The prevention of disease is the only common sense medical program for any community to attempt to carry out and the first step in that direction should be a thorough physical examination of every member of the family in order to find out if there are any correctable defects to be found and if found in time to do some good, then follow the advice of your physician thereby keeping your body in as good physical condition as possible that you may live and be a useful member of your family and your community as long as possible instead of becoming a burden or occupying a premature grave if you are really worth anything to your family and the community in which you reside, if not then it probably makes very little difference about the date of your funeral. Observation has taught the writer that most people desire to remain on earth just about as long as it is possible for them to do so, but if they do remain they should attempt to measure up to the standard as a citizen and be ready at any and all times to do their bit in behalf of others, especially the child population, as the children are at the mercy of the adult population, since they have no voice in legislative and administrative matters and are in this respect helpless and must naturally look to the adult population for such protection as they are entitled to. Just as your health is your most important asset, your department of health is your most important department and you should be sure to give it the attention and consideration which it deserves, and if you do not do so you will most certainly pay the price in the end which may seem to you to be very untimely, hence now is the time for action.

The very fact that you have your own body thoroughly examined may induce others to do likewise, therefore, many individuals may be benefited through you, so why not do something worth while for yourself and those whom you may influence to take this important step and do it now. Visit your doctor at once, it is less expensive and far more pleasant than to have him visit you.

ILLINOIS CRIMINAL POPULATION IS ON INCREASE

According to a survey of the Ill. State Penitentiary at Joliet, Southern Illinois Penitentiary at Chester, and Illinois State Reformatory at Pontiac, just completed under the direction of Hinton G. Clabaugh, supervisor of paroles, the criminal population of Illinois has increased 43.2 per cent in the last ten years. In the same period the civilian population increased but 17.3 per cent.

Serving Best Years of Life

Of those received at the three institutions above mentioned during 1921 to 1926 practically three-fourths are under thirty years of age. At Joliet 63 per cent of the men and women are under this age; at Chester 57.2 per cent are less than 30 years old, while at Pontiac all are under this age.

The survey presents interesting facts as to the schooling of the criminal population of the state. Of those received during the past year, which is practically parallel with any of the other years covered, 17.5 per cent have attended high school or college; 71 per cent received a common school education; 6.2 per cent are able to read and write, leaving but 5.3 as illiterate.

Big Majority Native Born

Taking those received at Joliet during the six year period it is shown that 84.1 per cent are native born; at Chester, 93.5 native born; and in Pontiac, this percentage is 93.2.

For the same period it is shown that 60.7 per cent of those received in Joliet had native born parents; 89.1 in Chester are second-generation Americans; and in Pontiac, 68.8 per cent claim native parentage.

In Joliet 73.9 per cent of the inmates are white, 26.1 per cent colored; in Chester 79.2 per cent white and 20.8 per cent colored; and in Pontiac, 84.4 per cent white and 15.6 per cent colored.

Firestone Dealers

Have Purchased 100% More GUM-DIPPED TIRES

[This Year Compared With Same Period Last Year]

THE demand from car owners for Gum-Dipped Tires has given Firestone Dealers a large increase in volume enabling them to sell these tires to you at the lowest prices in history.

On the cars of motorists everywhere, these wonderful tires are delivering unheard-of long mileage with greater safety and comfort.

The Firestone Balloon Tread, scientifically designed three years ago, and unchanged today, follows the contour of the tire carcass with no excess rubber at the edges to cause "shoulder breaks". Narrow rider strips permit the tread to yield to depressions and cling to the road, preventing skidding. This tough, pliable tread has the wear-resisting qualities for thousands of extra miles.

Such a tread must be placed on a carcass with the qualifications to withstand the terrific flexing that this design permits. The Firestone carcass is made of cords dipped in a rubber solution which not only saturates and insulates every fiber of every cord, but unifies sidewalls with carcass, avoiding separation under the extreme flexing.

Many Firestone Dealers are prepared to offer you a liberal allowance for your old tires, on a new set of Gum-Dipped Tires to start the motoring season.

To meet a demand for a low price tire and tube, Firestone designed and manufactures, for Firestone Dealers only, Oldfield Tires and Tubes, which carry the Standard Manufacturers' Guarantee.

R. I. 25 Year Club To Hold Reunion

Several hundred men and women who have spent a quarter of a century or more in the service of the Rock Island railroad, and who are still in the active employ of that company, will gather at the Kansas City Athletic Club, Kansas City, Mo., on Saturday, May 28, in the second annual reunion of the Rock Island Twenty-Five Year Club. The gathering will include both employees and officers. The delegates will come from practically all of the fourteen Middle Western states served by the Rock Island, and will represent all departments and divisions of the railroad.

Many of the members will be accompanied by their wives, and the latter will be entertained at a special reception and musicale at the Athletic Club during the afternoon of the 28th. The business session of the Twenty-Five Year Club members will be held at 11:30 A. M., at which time talks will be made by delegates representative of the various activities of the railroad.

The annual dinner of the Twenty-Five Year Club will be held at 7:00 P. M. on that date in the main dining room of the Athletic Club, at which time L. C. Fritch, Vice-President in charge of Operation of the Rock Island, and other officials from Chicago, are scheduled to speak. An elaborate musical program also will be rendered at the dinner, participated in by employees of the Rock Island and their families, including the Rock Island Railway Orchestra of Chicago. J. W. Lawhead, Local Freight Agent of the Rock Island at Chicago, and President of the Twenty-Five Year Club, will preside. The dinner will be followed by an old-time dance in the Grand Ball Room of the Athletic Club.

The Twenty-Five Year Club of the Rock Island Lines was organized more than a year ago through the efforts of Mr. Lawhead and his associates, to provide a means for social mingling of Rock Island men and women who have been employed on that railroad for twenty-five years or more, and who still are actively in the service, and have not been retired on pension. The Club is a purely voluntary organization, and is self-supporting. Its membership contains a great majority of the sixteen hundred employees of the Rock Island who have served that company for a quarter of a century or more.

Secret of Big Light Beam

A huge electric searchlight that casts beams visible for 50 or 60 miles on clear nights, the carbons are not like those of ordinary arc lamps. Instead, the electrodes are cored carbons containing chemicals in the cores. The main source of light is a small body of gas contained in the crater at the end of the positive electrode. This crater of gas quadruples the strength of the beam.

Alcohol Death

Toll Mounting

Springfield, Ill., May 18. - Blindness, lingering disease and death lurk in the deadly concoctions being resorted to in Illinois by those seeking to appease an appetite for alcohol. This is the warning of Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, Director, Department of Public Health.

The warning is in no way an arraignment of the Volstead act, but a plain statement of the fact that five times as many deaths in Illinois are traceable to bootleg concoctions as in the days when liquor was recognized and licensed. Hundreds of samples of the product of the bootlegger analyzed by the state health department without exception show a dangerous content of wood alcohol.

Wide Swath of Death

"The swath of death cut by alcohol is five times as wide as that cut in 1920", the report says. "Annual deaths in Illinois jumped from 47 in 1920 to 305 in 1925. The fatalities charged against cirrhosis of the liver, a condition frequently brought about by drinking, rose from 565 to 705 during the same period.

"In 1918, the last year before prohibition regulations went into effect there were 116 deaths from alcoholism reported in Illinois and 690 from cirrhosis of the liver. In 1919 the mortality figures for these two were 96 and 635 respectively, and for 1920 they were 47 and 565, the lowest point on record.

"Beginning in 1921 the mortality from alcoholism and cirrhosis of the liver demonstrated a strong upward tendency, each year with the exception of 1923 yielding larger figures than the one that went before.

"Apparently alcoholic fatalities follow much faster upon the indulgence of appetite now than formerly. Drunkenness appears to be much less than during the saloon days and many of the old time cure institutions have been abandoned for lack of patients. This suggests that the wares of the bootlegger are costing the buyers more than bargained for.

"The decline of mortality immediately after the Volstead act went into effect and the subsequent rise in fatalities from that cause follows closely upon the wave that marked the fall of the bartender and the rise of the bootlegger.

Blindness Often Caused

"Besides fatal termination the kind of stuff offered by bootleggers often causes serious and permanent disorders of the eyes. No statistics are available for Illinois on this condition, however.

"Hundreds of analysis of bootleg beverages have shown uniformly the presence of wood alcohol."

Board of Trade Bill

The Kessinger public exchange regulatory measure which would license all public exchanges and their members, and place them under the supervision of a Public Exchange Commission modeled after the Illinois Commerce Commission, is expected to pass the lower house of the legislature this week, according to word received by the WILL County Farm Bureau from the Ill. Agricultural Association today.

"This is a mild measure and will not impose any undue hardship or burden on the Board of Trade", stated Secretary George A. Fox. "Banks, public utilities, insurance companies, and almost every organization of public concern is subject to government supervision, and the experiences of the past show clearly that the Board of Trade not only needs such supervision but will be aided because of it."

The bill provides that a public exchange commission of 3 men with the state director of agriculture as ex-officio chairman, and two others appointed by the governor and subject to the approval of the Senate, shall be set up with powers of licensing exchanges and their members, examining records, investigating dealings when such action seems necessary, and holding hearings when the occasion demands.

Each member of the Commission would hold office for a term of four years. He may not hold any stock or bonds in any firm or corporation connected with the exchange. The commission would familiarize itself with the business of the exchange, adopt proper rules and regulations, and have the power to make any changes found necessary for the good of the public and the exchange.

Paine's Claim to Fame

Thomas Paine was born in 1737 and died in 1809. Of his work called "Common Sense" it is said that it was "the first open assertion of American independence, and was probably the most powerful pamphlet that ever influenced a nation's history." In this sense Thomas Paine may be said to have influenced the preparation and adoption of the Declaration of Independence.

A TEACHER'S PRAYER

My Lord, I do not ask to stand
As King or Prince of high degree,
I only pray that hand in hand,
A child and I may come to Thee.

O grant Thy patience to incite
Obedience to law and love of truth
Give sympathy, that in Thy sight,
I may devoted be to youth.

As step by step we tread the way
Steadfast and confident and free,
A child and I shall spend each day
In fellowship with truth and Thee.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

The two-cent gasoline tax, which has the support of Governor Small, has been reported out of the roads committee of the Senate. There is evidence of some opposition to the measure. Senator A. L. McCawley of Carthage, Mo., who was the guest of Senator Norman G. Flagg, Mo., at the session of the roads committee at which the gas measure was under consideration, stated that Missouri has a gasoline tax, and that there seems to be no serious objection to it in that state. Several amendments may be offered, but the indications are that the bill will be passed as suggested by Governor Small, as the plan seems to have been worked out by those who are most interested in the success of the hard road program.

J. S. Miles, Sr., president of the state fair board, has announced the following scale to be used in judging the efforts of contestants in the second Illinois state fair hog-calling contest: Volume, 50 per cent; persuasiveness, 25 per cent, and melody, 25 per cent. This schedule of relative merits was prescribed by the board's chairman in conference with Director S. J. Stanard of the department of agriculture and Walter W. Lindley, general manager of the fair. Last year's entrants, in all probability, and added starters will compete. Senator Randolph Boyd of Galva, prominent in the feature attraction last season, and Senator Harry Wilson of Pinckneyville, medalist in one of the preliminary contests, have expressed their determination to wrest the cup from Champion Guy Bender, who was the winner of the first annual, in the coming renewal.

The state division of highways has awarded contracts for pavement, bridges and grading throughout the state, as follows:

Route 2, section 51S, Macon county, pavement; to Hurd Construction company, Springfield, $9,117.20.

Route 98, section 110A, Fulton county, grading; to Cameron Joyce & Co., Keokuk, $27,684.51.

Route 78, section 104A, Jo Daviess county, grading; to Gaines Brothers, Union, Mo., $107,069.28.

Route 152, section 104A, bridge; to W. D. Chapman, Vienna, $45,029.46.

Route 152, section 104B, bridge; to Illinois Steel Bridge company, Jacksonville, $15,278.61.

Route 100, section 11B, Pike county, bridge; to H. A. Worman, Pittsfield, for $23,111.80, who also was awarded a grading contract on the same route for $22,642.22.

Contracts for approximately 15 miles of pavement on route 49 have been let by the state highway division. R. G. Flaughner company of Urbana received the contract for the construction of 6.1 miles from Yale to Willow Hill. The bid was $133,935.23. Orville Arnold of Casey on a bid of $145,488.27 received the contract for the construction of 8.7 miles from Casey to Westfield on the same route. No work has yet been done on this route, which, when completed, will run from Willow Hill in Jasper county to Chicago through Kankakee.

The Weber bill, prohibiting the searching of automobiles for liquor without a warrant was killed in the house, and a referendum clause was inserted in the O'Grady bill, which has been joined with a similar measure by Representative Weber, Chicago, upon motion of Representative Elmer Schnackenberg, Chicago, when the bill was called for second reading. The O'Grady bill calls for the repeal of the search and seizure and prohibition acts.

Senator Harold Kessinger's bill to regulate the Chicago board of trade has passed the senate. This bill would place the board of trade under the control of a commission of three members to be known as the public exchange commission, which shall have power to license members of the board.

A bill compelling poultry dealers to keep a record of poultry purchased, sponsored by Representative Robert Whiteley, Carlinville, has passed the house.

Representative Lottie Holman O'Neill, Downers Grove, introduced a bill to provide free transportation for pupils who live a great distance from school.

The house has passed Representative William Weiss' bill appropriating $30,000 for a school of journalism at the University of Illinois.

The eight-hour bill for women, sponsored by Senator Starr, Chicago, was advanced to the order of third reading in the senate. Representative Lottie Holman O'Neill reintroduced in amended form her bill, which was defeated in the house. The present bill calls for a 48-hour week for women.

Representative Thomas O'Grady introduced a bill providing for punishment by a fine of $200 and costs and a month in jail for persons found guilty of participating in fixed athletic events.

Gov. Len Small and William J. Stratton, director of the department of conservation, have announced the purchase by the state of a game and fish preserve and public shooting and fishing grounds of over 3,000 acres of land and water in Alexander county. This deal transfers to the state 2,000 acres of Horseshoe lake and 1,100 acres of land lying within the curve of the lake. Horseshoe lake preserve, as this tract is known, is located twelve miles northeast of Cairo, Ill., about two miles from the Mississippi and six miles from the Ohio river. A tract of seventeen hundred acres in Woodford county near Peoria was recently purchased for the same purpose.

Under the provisions of the game and fish codes passed by the 1923 general assembly all money received by the department of conservation from hunting, fishing and trapping licenses is set apart in a special fund. All the money in this fund is to be used for the necessary expenses of the department and the purchase of land for preserves and public shooting and fishing grounds, purchase and distribution of game birds and eggs, rescue and distribution of fish and establishment of fish hatcheries.

Thus all expenses of the game and fish restoration program are paid by revenue from hunting and fishing licenses without any direct taxes.

Some very interesting statements concerning lumber consumption in Illinois and reforestation were made by Chief Forester R. B. Miller of the state department of conservation in a lecture on "The Forestry Situation in Illinois." He stated that the average farm of 134 acres uses about 1,250 board feet of lumber per year; railway and interurban lines within the state use 6,000,000 ties every year, most of them made from timber produced in bottom land forests, which when given preservative treatment with creosote can be made to last 15 years or more; 20,000,000 cubic feet are used yearly for mining coal, not taking into consideration that which is used above ground for buildings and other structures.

Mr. Miller stated further that investigations show that our farm woodlands are decreasing at the rate of 4,500 acres a year, while waste land on farms is increasing at the rate of 25,000 acres a year. There is a total of almost 1,500,000 acres of waste lands, mostly on farms, which could be reforested, and this would require at a very conservative estimate the production of 15,000,000 seedlings a year to reforest with any degree of speed.

Governor Small's primary election bill was introduced in the senate by Senator John Joyce, Chicago, and in the house by Representative A. L. Stanfield, Paris, chairman of the elections committee of their respective branches. The bill is designed to provide a primary law on the statute books in case the Supreme court upholds the decision of the Lee county Circuit court which declared the present primary law to be invalid. A final decision will probably be handed down by the Supreme court the latter part of next month, and in the event that it upholds the decision of the lower court, a special session of the legislature would be necessary in the absence of a new law.

Prominent among the well-known speakers on the program of the Illinois State Historical society during its twenty-eighth annual meeting, held in the Centennial building auditorium, were Mrs. Isaac D. Rawlings, whose subject was "The Polish Exiles in Illinois," and Representative Elbert Waller, Tamaroa, who spoke on "Some Half Forgotten Towns in Illinois." Representative Waller has written a history of the state and is also a well-known lecturer.

The state of Illinois has presented its final testimony before Master in Chancery Charles G. Briggie in its accounting case against Gov. Len Small. Governor Small filed a statement of account in which he claimed his books balanced and that he owed the state nothing. The state filed objections, however, claiming that there is still a balance due.

Attorney General Carlstrom has advanced the opinion that where only one political party has nominated candidates for circuit judge for the June 6 elections, the names of the other parties need not appear on the ballot.

Senator Harry Wilson, Pinckneyville, introduced a bill to appropriate $17,500 for the construction of a bridge over Kincaid creek, Jackson county.

The house voted down Representative Jacob Marten's bill requiring all county treasurers of the state to advertise for bids from banks for the deposit of county funds.

State Fire Marshal John G. Gamber addressed the annual conference of the Dominion Fire Prevention association in Ottawa, Canada. Mr. Gamber appeared before the Canadian organization not only as a representative of the state of Illinois but also as a representative of the federal fire prevention organization.

VELVET APPLIQUE IN BOLD DESIGN; MILLINERY TAKES TO WIDE BRIMS

WHILE velvet in itself is not a novelty, the fact that it is playing an all-year-round engagement on the stage of fashion is decidedly novel and modern. It is significant that prominent creators catering to the fashionables and elite of society in Paris whose decisions are generally accepted as setting style are paying much attention to velvet. This is true not only in regard to velvet as a trimming, but velvet jackets and coats are quite the smart style item of the moment.

Creating no end of excitement among those who aspire to the unusual are the new-vogue slender pastel-colored velvet coats. They are certainly lovely and one can readily foresee the triumphs they will score in the coming months. Just now they luster satin frock over which is worn a slender coat of the material which is all-over quilted, then collared and cuffed with matching velvet, with the added attraction of a big velvet ribbon bow.

Wide brims? The large hat is not only a summer fashion to be, but it is an immediate spring mode. Surely the capriciousness of millinery is manifesting itself in the matter of brims this season. The pendulum swings from the brimless to the wide, wider, widest brims. Not that the caplike snug shape is losing its popularity, not at all, but the mode now includes both types in its program.

As to the favorite wide-brim hat, it is undoubtedly the large black milan straw, such as is the stunning model in the center of this group. Just such are being worn over matching crepe frocks, but later they will, no doubt, top frocks of sheer flowery prints. Short velvet jackets are also modish, especially with silk plaited skirts. As to velvet in millinery, it is scheduled to trim the majority of wide-brimmed black milan straws. The large drooping horsehair capelines in lovely colorings, simply trimmed with wide velvet ribbon are a joy of summer promise.

Used in a trimming way on frocks and coats, velvet shows a distinguishing mark of chic. Applique velvet scrolls and circles enhance many a costume of crepe or satin. In the instance of the models in the picture thus embellished, the designer uses a one should be included in every wardrobe of hats for immediate wear and the coming summer. Black satin borders and bands this elegant milan, two sparkling ornaments completing the effectiveness.

Velvet is regarded very smart as a hat trimming. It is velvet which so handsomely bands the crown of the huge-brimmed model shown first in this picture. The rhinestone semi-band shows off resplendently against its velvet background.

We are so accustomed to seeing the tiny snug crocheted hat that a broad-brim crocheted type such as is pictured at the top to the right seems almost a novelty by way of contrast. This exquisite crocheted visca is turned up at for both the dress to the right and the cloak to the left black velvet on black, for all-black is in supreme favor with the haute couture of the French capital.

Another stunning effect is the black dress elaborated with a rich applique done in royal blue velvet.

Colorful crepe frocks to which the velvet design is perfectly matched, are also in high favor. A Lanvin green garnitured with velvet of selfsame shade is charming. A navy blue crepe with navy velvet patterning is handsome and practical.

A close second to black is beige and very wonderful are coats and ensembles created of crepe in this color, combined with velvet in matching shade.

With the Parisienne a favorite is the beige crepe or crepe-back lack-the back, has a fabric facing and a grosgrain ribbon band.

A wide-brimmed leghorn is always apropos for summer. The one in the picture, being finished and trimmed in a tailored way with handsome black taffeta, will be in taste with either one's suit or one's flowery chiffon frock.

Striped ribbon in enjoying a big vogue this season. It is therefore very modish for the hat below to the right to be banded with colorful striped grosgrain.

Summer will witness large drooping horsehair capelines in the full measure of their lovely coloring and transparency. Velvet ribbon in same tone as the hat is heralded as a favorite trimming for these exquisitely dainty shapes.

6 things to understand about used car allowances

- 1 When you trade-in your used car for a new car, you are after all making a purchase, not a sale. You are simply applying your present car as a credit toward the purchase price of the new car.
- 2 Your used car has only one fundamental basis of value; i. e., what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market.
- 3 Your used car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.
- 4 The largest allowance is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is; sometimes it is not.
- 5 An excessive allowance may mean that you are paying an excessive price for the new car in comparison with its real value.
- 6 First judge the merits of the new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh any difference in allowance offered on your used car.

Longfellow-Evangeline National Memorial Park

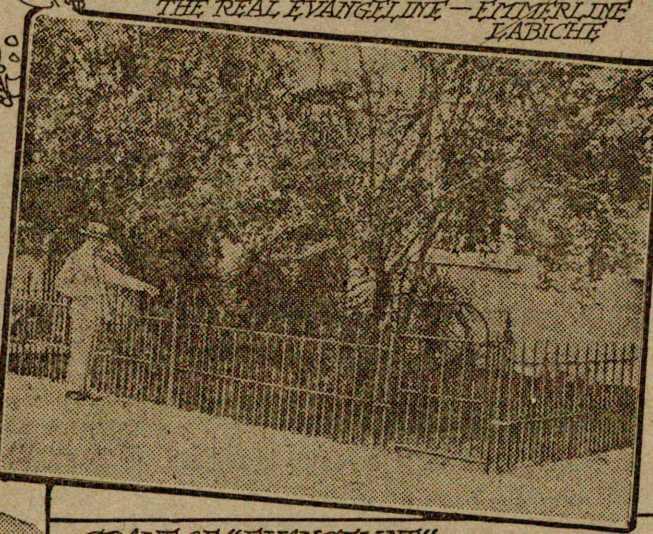

EVANGELINE OAK ON BAYOU TECHÉ

HOME OF LOUIS ARCENEAUX - "GABRIEL"

JUDGE EDWARD SIMON

GRAVE OF "EVANGELINE"

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

ONE of the tenderest love stories in American literature and one of America's best-loved poets, who made that love story immortal, are to have an enduring memorial in the form of a national park of 1,000 acres, if present plans are carried forward to a successful conclusion. That story is the story of the quest of Evangeline, the Acadian maiden, for her lover, the poet is Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, who wrote her epic of love and devotion, and the project is the establishment of a national reservation near St. Martinville, La., to be known as Longfellow-Evangeline National Memorial park.

Down in Louisiana the descendants of Evangeline's people, the Acadians, have formed a Longfellow-Evangeline National Park association, the purpose of which is stated by its officers as follows: To build a great national memorial to the Acadians; to erect a splendid bronze statue, representing Longfellow and the heroine of his poem, "Evangeline," the Acadian maiden of Grand Pre; to preserve the Evangeline Oak, a tree more than four hundred years old, also the ancient trees around St. Martinville, the scene of the poem; to preserve the ancient brick building which stands near the oak and which was the trading post of the Attakapas Indians, and to build a museum in which will be kept the records and antiques used by the early Acadians and French emigrants into Louisiana, as well as a record of each donor, so that the lives of these people, whom Longfellow immortalized, may be studied by this generation and generations to come.

In accordance with this plan the association is enlisting the aid of every citizen of Louisiana to have the first national park in the South located in the Pelican state. It has already secured appropriation of $10,000 by the state legislature which has made possible the purchase of a tract of at least 250 acres and it is asking the federal government for an appropriation of $100,000 in order that more land—as much as 1,000 acres, if possible—may be bought. The project is more than one to foster local pride, since by the natural beauties of that section may be made more apparent and made accessible to the thousands of tourists from all parts of the country who drive through the Acadian country every year. For that reason the park has a national significance. It also has an international significance in that French Canadians will be invited to share in thus honoring the memory of those of their people who, so many years ago, were forced to leave their homes and go into exile.

Included in the plans for the park are those for a sculptured group of Longfellow and his two famous characters, Evangeline and Gabriel. This group will be placed as nearly as possible to the spot where tradition says Evangeline kept her tryst with the lover of her youth. Near it will be built a wading pool and about this will stand the sculptured symbolic figures of Youth, Gladness, Love and Despair, as exemplified in the poem. And over all this artificial beauty will tower the gray moss-hung oaks and cypress trees which are such a prominent feature of the Louisiana landscape. One of the beauty spots in the park will be an old-fashioned garden in which will be found flowers such as Evangeline tended in her garden by the Basin of Minas and through which will run shaded walks, winding around quiet pools—a place of ancient beauty whose only modern touch will be the driveways for motorists, the gates that mark the entrance and the lighting system which will make possible the use of the park at night.

Although the park is situated in the Acadian country and will be a memorial to the Acadians, it will be no less a memorial to Longfellow, the poet. It has already won the support of many varying interests. The trades unions of America will erect there a monument symbolical of Longfellow's poem, "The Builders." The iron-workers of Canada and the United States are uniting to erect a statuary group depicting "The Village Blacksmith." "Hawatha" will be immortalized in bronze by contributions from the Indians of the two countries and an effort will be made to interest the school children of America in giving penny contributions which will make possible a statue appropriate to "The Children's Hour." Although they were characters of fiction, there once did live a "Gabriel" and an "Evangeline" whose love story inspired Longfellow's poem. The name of the real "Evangeline" was Emmerline Labiche, the faithless "Gabriel" was Louis Arceneaux, and their life story is a part of the tragic tale of the simple folk of Acadia who were deported by British soldiers from their homes away back in 1755. The Acadians were French colonists who had settled in what is now Nova Scotia in 1607, and who lived a happy, contented existence in their homes in the New world until caught in the maelstrom of world politics, stirred up by the contest between England and France to decide which nation was to dominate the North American continent. In the series of wars between the two countries which began in 1689 Acadia was a pawn on the international chess-board, now held by the French and now by the British.

As for the Acadians themselves, they were in the main neutral. In fact they were often referred to in the official papers of the time as the "Neutral French." While the sympathies of most of them no doubt leaned toward their own countrymen and some of them supported the French cause, for the most part they wished to be left alone in their peaceful pursuits as farmers and fishermen. The question of their allegiance was never definitely settled after any of the treaties of peace, but in 1755, with France and England girding for the final decisive struggle, the Acadians found themselves caught between the upper and nether millstones of British and French demands for their loyalty.

In that year the British, who then held Acadia, decided that the Acadians were "an enemy encamped in the heart of the province" and determined to force a show-down. They reiterated a demand that had been made many years before, but which had never been insisted upon—that the Acadians take an oath of allegiance to the British crown upon pain of forfeiture of their rights and lands. What followed is well-described by George M. Wrong in "The Conquest of New France" in the Yale University Chronicles of America as follows:

The thing was done in the summer and autumn of 1755. Colonel Robert Monckton, a regular officer, son of an Irish peer, who always showed an ineffable superiority to provincial officers serving under him, was placed in charge of the work. He ordered the male inhabitants of the neighborhood of Beauséjour to meet him there on the tenth of August. Only about one-third of them came—some four hundred. He told them that the government at Halifax now declared them rebels. Their lands and all their goods were forfeited; they themselves were to be kept in prison. Not yet, however, was made known to them the decision that they were to be treated as traitors of whom the province must be rid. No attempt was made anywhere to distinguish loyal from disloyal Acadians. Major Lawrence, British governor at Halifax, gave orders to the military officers to clear the country of all Acadians, to get them by any necessary means on board the transports which would carry them away, and to burn their houses and crops so that those not caught might perish or be forced to surrender during the coming winter. At the moment, the harvest had just been reaped or was ripening.

When the stern work was done at Grand Pre, at Plisquid, now Windsor, at Annapolis, there were harrowing scenes. In command of the work at Grand Pre was Colonel Winslow, an officer from Massachusetts—some of whose relatives twenty-five years later were to be driven, because of their loyalty to the British king, from their own homes in Boston to this very land of Acadia. Winslow issued a summons in French to all the male inhabitants, down to lads of ten, to come to the church at Grand Pre on Friday, the fifth of September, to learn the orders he had to communicate. Those who did not appear were to forfeit their goods. No doubt many of the Acadians did not understand the summons. Few of them could read, and it hardly mattered to them that on one occasion a notice on the church door was posted upside down. Some four hundred anxious peasants appeared. Winslow read to them a proclamation to the effect that their houses and lands were forfeited and that they themselves and their families were to be deported. Five vessels from Boston lay at Grand Pre. In time more ships arrived, but still October had come before Winslow was finally ready.

By this time the Acadians realized what was to happen. The men were joined by their families. As far as possible the people of the same village were kept together. They were forced to march to the transports, a sorrow-laden company, women carrying babes in their arms, old and decrepit people borne in carts, young and strong men dragging what belongings they could gather. Winslow's task, as he says, lay heavy on his heart and hands: "It hurts me to hear their weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth." By the first of November he had embarked 1,500 unhappy people. His last shipload he sent off on the thirteenth of December. The suffering from cold must have been terrible. In all from Grand Pre and other places more than 6,000 Acadians were deported. They were scattered in the English colonies from Maine to Georgia and in both France and England. Many died; many, helpless in new surroundings, sank into decrepit pauperism. Some reached people of their own blood in the French colony of Louisiana and Canada.

Among those who came to Louisiana was young Louis Arceneaux who had become separated from his sweetheart, Emmerline Labiche, and who settled on Bayou Teche, a stream which winds in and out like a snake, hence its name, which is the Indian term for snake. Here, too, ten years later came Emmerline Labiche, who had been mourning the loss of her lover.

And the soul of the maiden, between the stars and the fireflies, Wandered alone and she cried, "O, Gabriel. O, my beloved!
Art thou so near unto me, and yet I cannot behold thee?
Ah, how often thy feet have trod this path to the prairie!"

At last Emmerline found her lover, and tradition says that the meeting took place beneath the historic Evangeline Oak on the Bayou Teche, where she learned that her faithless lover had married another. It was the story of Emmerline Labiche and Louis Arceneaux, told to Longfellow when he was an instructor at Harvard by a student from Louisiana, later Judge Henry Simon, which the poet wove into his famous poem.

If you visit St. Martinville, La., today they will point out to you the house where "Gabriel" (Louis Arceneaux) once lived and they will take you to the spot near the left wing of the old St. Martin Catholic church, established in 1765 by Father Jean Francois, a Capuchin missionary, where sleeps "Evangeline" (Emmerline Labiche). It is not strictly true, as Longfellow has written it, that Side by side in their nameless graves, the lovers are sleeping.

Under the humble walls of the little Catholic churchyard,
In the heart of the city, they lie, unknown and unnoticed.
Daily the tides of life go ebbing and flowing beside them.

But if you go there you will still hear the soft accents of the Acadian tongue and you may learn that upon occasion

Maidens still wear their Norman caps and their kirtles of homespun,
And by the evening fire repeat Evangeline's story.

For the descendants of the exiled Acadians are proud of their ancestry with its heritage of sorrow, and in this country of primitive beauty they live simply, yet extending always a hospitality to the stranger that warms the heart. It is in honor of these simple, kindly people who "have left their forceful personality, the 'gray granite' virtues of honesty and uprightness, piety and political power in the civil records throughout the United States, the country they have done so much to develop," that the Longfellow-Evangeline National Memorial park is to be established for the enjoyment of all Americans.

Nervous Indigestion, Loss of Sleep and Run-down Condition, Causes Well-known Chicago Man Much Suffering. Says Tanlac Rescued Him

M. B. Philip, well-to-do property owner, perhaps better known as President of Carpenters Union No. 62, living at 6915 Stewart Avenue, Chicago, says: "When I began taking Tanlac I was always tired, and suffering from loss of sleep. My stomach was so upset that I couldn't eat without suffering from indigestion."

"I followed the advice of a friend and began taking Tanlac. It lived up to its reputation and fulfilled all promises. Quickly my old strength returned. I began to have a great appetite and every night I sleep soundly. Tanlac certainly put me on my feet, and gave me better health and at every opportunity I recommend it to friends and members of my union."

Called "Funny Face" Cried Self To Sleep

Miss Gussie Frutczweig, Bronx, N. Y., writes: "For months I tried in vain to clear my face of horrible pimples. Once I overheard my dearest friend refer to me as 'pimple-face' and everyone laughed. I cried bitterly. I read about CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS being used successfully to clear complexions when due to the poisons from constipation and finally tried them. Well, my picture tells its own story, doesn't it?"

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS move the bowels in a gentle manner free from pain and eliminate the poisons of constipation from the system. These poisons, unless removed, are absorbed by the blood and appear in the form of skin eruptions and blemishes. CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS in red packages, 25c. and 75c. Try them to-night—To-morrow refreshed—All druggists.

A precious one from us has gone
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.
God in His wisdom has recalled

TO HONOR HISTORIC HEROINE SOUTHERN NATIONAL PARK

One of the tenderest love stories in all American history is that immortalized by the poet, Longfellow, in his story of "Evangeline", the Acadian maiden and her tragic quest for her lover.

There was a real "Evangeline" and a real "Gabriel" (although those were not their names) and they once lived in the historic Bayou Teche country of Louisiana. It is in that country that a national memorial park, honoring the memory of the Acadian maiden and the poet who immortalized her, is to be established if present plans are successfully completed. Read about this memorial, the first national park in the South, and the true story of Evangeline in the article "Evangeline - Longfellow Memorial National Park," by Elmo Scott Watson in this issue of

The News - Bulletin

Don C. Hall to Meet Appropriation Committee Tuesday

A good sized crowd attended the meeting of the Mokena Development and Hard Road Improvement Association Monday night. Chairman L. G. Bruder stated that the Bill on Wolf Road had been slated for a hearing in the legislature this week, so Don C. Hall, president of the association went to Springfield Monday in the interest of the bill.

Mr. Bruder said that next Monday night plans will be discussed for a bill board to be placed south of the Rock Island setting forth a few live facts why Mokena would make a desirable homesite. In addition plans are to be discussed for inducing industries to locate in Mokena. As all of these matters are up for discussion next Monday night a full house is desired.

On Wednesday news came from Mr. Hall that owing to the heavy press of business on the Chicago traction bills, bill No. 422 will come up next week. Mr. Hall has been invited by chairman Curran of the appropriation committee to meet with this committee next Tuesday morning. Mr. Hall will probably not be able to be here next Monday night and a written report of his findings this week while attending the legislative sessions will possibly be read. Everyone invited.

The county bond issue map committee is busy getting roads designated on the county map. Supervisor Welter of Homer has recommended Wolf Road as one of the main roads to be placed on the county map.

Start Laying

Gas Mains

The Public Service Company has begun active work in laying the gas mains from Tinley Park to Mokena, a digging machine having been on the job for a couple of weeks. At present trenches are being dug on the side of the highway running southwest of Tinley Park to Mokena. Just how long it will be before the digging machine reaches Mokena depends on the weather. A number of Public Service men are engaged this week in extending the gas mains to the south side in Tinley.

MOKENA

"False Faces" New Play at Studebaker

A new play "False Faces" from the pens of Richard Hardinge Barker and Greatrich Newman, will be presented at the Studebaker Theatre, Chicago, on Sunday night May 15th, for the first time on any stage. R. H. Burnside, the producer, is internationally famous as a stage director, and his marvelous presentations at the New York Hippodrome, have placed him in a class by himself, having never been equaled in any country. His entrance into the producing field is a gratifying sign of the times, as it is a foregone conclusion that any play to which he attaches his name, is well worthy of careful consideration of those who desire the fine things the theatre has to offer.

When it was learned a few weeks ago that Mr. Burnside contemplated making a production, all sorts of inducements were made him by New York managers to persuade him to open his new play in New York, but he steadfastly declined all offers, as he is firmly of the opinion that at this time Chicago is a much more favorable city in which to produce a new play.

The story of "False Faces" is a delightful combination of wit and mystery and is highly interesting. The cast includes such well known stars as: Charles Richman, Dallas Welford, A. G. Andrews, Leo Donnelly, Careton Macy, Frederick Burton, Helen Baxter, Catherine Willard, Louise Mackintosh and Robert W. Craig.
